

VARIANT FEAT: NOBLE SCION

You are a member of one of the significant noble families of Melvaunt, whether or not you remain in good standing with your family. In some cases, these families are Militarists loyal to Maxillar Bruel, and as such you are at odds with the goals of your family. If you choose one of those families and if your sentiments and actions become known to them, you are likely either to become a black sheep or cut off entirely.

Prerequisites: Charisma 13 or Minor Noble Background

Benefit: You are proficient in all History checks involving Moonsea Nobility.

You also gain an additional benefit depending on which family you belong to.

Kilaudra: You come from the long line of ambassadors, diplomats, and travelers that make up the “Kilaudri”, and your family maintains the strongest ties to the elves of Cormanthyr of any Moonsea humans.

-Select one of the following as a bonus starting language: Celestial, Elven, Gnome, Sylvan.

-You gain proficiency in the Persuasion skill and have advantage on all Persuasion checks when trying to persuade an elf or half-elf.

Tuscabibble: Although you are “human”, you are very short (below 5 feet) and you are descended from the most famous of Edric Storm’s mistresses, Lavinia Tuscabibble (you are not, however, a descendant of Edric Storm). Your family has been awarded titles for its service, and is known for keen insights and biting observations.

-You gain proficiency in the Insight skill and can substitute your Charisma modifier for your Wisdom modifier when attempting Insight skill checks.

Baregon: Your family came to Moonsea from Cormyr, after being on the losing end of a major political struggle. Cormyr being the greatest naval nation in the history of Faerun, your family maintains its legacy as traders and sailors.

-You gain advantage on Investigation checks that involve ships, cargo, the docks, and other naval subject areas (subject to DM’s discretion), and on Survival checks to navigate any waterway.

Bruell: Yours is a family of distinguished military veterans, charismatic demagogues, and xenophobic zealots. As the rest of the family becomes increasingly Militarist, you find yourself wanting to thwart the ambitions of the pater familias. But you retain the skills they taught you during a childhood of rigorous training.

-You can apply your Strength modifier instead of your Dexterity modifier on Initiative checks.

-You have advantage on History checks involving the Moonsea military.

Marsk: Your family, devoted to Lathander, the Morninglord, has produced some of Moonsea's greatest healers, priests, and negotiators. Your family is the most longstanding and vocal opponent of Edric Storm’s decision to establish diplomatic relations with Thay, for obvious reasons.

-You gain one additional use per rest of your channel divinity power or of your bardic inspiration power. If you are a paladin, your lay on hands ability allows you to heal a number of HP equal to your paladin level x6 (normally, it is x5). You gain only one of these benefits, even if you later acquire a second class that provides one of the other class features listed.

Moje: You are descended from Laronen Moje, Edric Storm's original First Mate. Moje was a Red Wizard of Thay and the Grand Wizard and founder of the Laroneum. Your family ranks include the greatest wizards and arcane scholars in Moonsea, and schooling in some of the most comprehensive arcane libraries in the Moonsea region was your birthright.

You cannot choose this family unless your Intelligence is 13 or higher.

You gain two extra cantrips: Dancing Lights and Prestidigitation. Also, you may cast Unseen Servant once each day without using a spell slot ..

Shadowbanks: The reasons for your family's ascension to nobility are shrouded in mystery, and there are more theories about the real story than there are members of this small, tightly knit family. Perhaps because there are so few of you, and because you've done such a great job of hiding your family's history from common knowledge, the cunning members of your family are a longtime fixture in Melvaunt's bureaucracy, specializing in tracking lineages, discovering secrets, and sidestepping red tape.

-You gain advantage on Deception checks to send secret messages and on Investigation checks to discern secret messages.

-You halve the time required to search through archives, navigate government offices, review contracts, or otherwise work with the complex bureaucracies your family has mastered for generations.

Laregon: Your family are aristocrats first, and citizens of the Empire second. Staunch Republicans who feel that the Senate, and the nobles who occupy it, are Moonsea's most precious and important resource. Your family is wealthy, but more important than wealth is the fact that the Laregons were the most important House in Melvaunt for centuries before the empire ever existed.

-You gain advantage on all History and Insight checks involving the Moonsea Senate or one of its senators. You start with an additional 200 gp.

El Gata: Your family immigrated to Moonsea not long after Edric Storm ascended to the Crown, and brought with it extensive trade contacts all over Faerun. Grand Duke Terrian El Gata is the richest man in the Moonsea Empire, and he dominates the trade of imports and exports into and out of the Moonsea.

-You gain advantage on all Persuasion checks to barter or gain a better price in negotiating any commercial transaction.

-Once per week, you can reach out to a trade contact outside the Moonsea region to acquire a piece of information or a trade good worth no more than 25 gp x your level.

Norster: Your family runs a number of charities for the underprivileged and they lobby heavily for social reform. The Norsters wear their hearts on their sleeves, leaving them with few friends among the haughtiest stratum of their noble peers, but with real and lasting heartfelt support from the common folk and some of the lesser nobility.

-You gain advantage on Medicine checks.

-You gain advantage on Insight checks when dealing with common citizens or the lowest levels of petty nobility.